Chinese claims that the United States was denying China its right to claim a string of islands in the South China Sea. The president’s tweet capped off a week of mounting warnings from Trump and his administration concerning China’s actions. The president on Sunday warned that China “will be cutting off” trade with the United States if it did not comply with “full and immediate” implementation of the Obama-era United States-China trade deal by the end of last month. “I am a Tariff Man,” Trump wrote. As an additional measure, Trump has approved an order to slap tariffs on foreign steel and aluminum, an action that many analysts have warned could hit allies and trade partners in Europe and Canada. “The president is willing to end this tariff cycle,” said White House economic adviser Larry Kudlow, adding that the United States has “agreed to end this trade war and move on.” Still, despite the opening salvos of the trade war, there is some indication that China and the United States may be warming to each other. As part of the expanded military drills being conducted this week in the Gulf, the People’s Liberation Army Navy
