Note 6.1. The proof of Theorem 6.5 offers a method for finding a basis for the value space $L(V)$ of a linear transformation $L: V \rightarrow W$. However, this method has a drawback. One could find the basis using the transpose operation. But then it would turn out that an arbitrary linear transformation could also be taken as the basis of $L(V)$. Suppose now that the value space of the linear transformation $L(V)$ is defined by formula (5.1), where $V \rightarrow W$. Then, obviously, $L(V) - L(L(V)) = L(L(V)) - L(V) = L(L(V))$, so that the basis $L(V) \rightarrow L(L(V)) = L(L(V))$. Therefore, another method of constructing the basis could also be used.
