Keymacro Description: Macro Editor Keymacro is a powerful keymapping utility for the MacBook Pro and MacBook Air. With the tool you can create macro keys for basic actions that can be recorded in keyboard shortcuts, like choosing a menu option or opening a file. Keymacro allows you to record any key combination by defining what key combination you want to create a shortcut for. If you record a key combination before pressing the key combination it will only be recorded after you press the assigned keys. If you want to erase the action afterwards simply tap the Erase button. If you assign a new key combination to a specific application, the key combination will be applied to any other application that you use the application in the past. If the key combination is created on the same application it will be applied to all open windows of the same application. This makes it easy to create shortcut keys that are available for all the programs that you use, thus making your shortcuts more convenient. Simple to use. Keymacro is very simple to use. It takes about a minute to learn to use the tool and then you're ready to create your shortcuts. When you first launch the software the first window you see is the Mac Keyboard View where you can choose from the different languages and then from the Mac Keyboard Preference you can choose from the different keymapping options. Once you are finished choosing the settings in the Keyboard Preference you can then press the Continue button to launch the Macro Editor window. This window is where you create your shortcut keys. One of the interesting features of Keymacro is that you can see the recorded key combination before pressing it. You can see the commands and the key combination is created from pressing the assigned keys. When recording a key combination you can assign a key in a specific application. This will create a shortcut for that key in that application only. Each application has a different method of creating the shortcut keys. For example in Safari the key combination for the Preferences menu is, "options-help-all-about". So if you assign this key combination to a menu option in your Safari you will be able to use this shortcut keys to access this menu. When recording a new key combination Keymacro will remember it in the Keymacro pane of the preferences. If you change the language you will need to restart the Mac to see the new shortcuts. If you want to keep the same settings as you had when the tool was launched you can use the Save 77a5ca646e
