What's New in the Panorama Tab For Firefox?

Panorama Tab for Firefox There are plenty of extensions that change your browser's interface, add new functionality, or simply make the whole browsing experience more enjoyable. Indeed, what Panorama Tab offers is not revolutionary; however, you get useful functionality and a well-working, easy-to-set-up add-on. So, why should you choose Panorama Tab over other extensions? Well, the utility is free of cost, small in size, and non-intrusive with your browsing activity or private data use. The extension offers the flexibility to configure your design options, to change your background (using any free resource from Unsplash), to view weather information, or to navigate between your top 10 most visited sites. Probably one of the most useful options offered by this browser extension is the feature that allows customizing your search options and alternate between Google, DuckDuckGo (for increased navigation privacy), Ecosia (a search alternative for eco-friendly individuals), or Wikipedia (for quickly getting access to information). Reading Reddit content, news, and top stories Panorama Tab displays different types of Reddit posts, up to 40 per newly opened tab. So, for those who like to browse Reddit, read the news, or check the hottest topics, this Firefox add-on is ideal. In the indicated dropdown menu, users can click the given command for loading more news data. Moreover, they can choose between three types of Reddit content: hot topics, newest subreddits, or rising articles.
