This works great but I have one issue that I am trying to solve, it's only related to login/access level of the user. When I get my document using php oxml, I know the principal is the authenticated user of the current website. In reality, that user (and hence access) is level 1, but according to the security policy on SharePoint, this user is level 5. I understand why the policy is in place as I cannot let anyone access the content of the document, but this is a huge issue as the file is massive and no two users have the same login name. I'm currently using a workaround where I replace a different name, so the authenticated user actually sees the full path of where the file is in SharePoint, and the principal that I use is level 5. I used the information provided here to figure this out: Is there a way to force PHP oxml to get the principal of the logged in user as level 5 when authenticating the document? A: I found it! In the past, I used the file name and only 1cb139a0ed
